FORWORD

We, the class of 1941, will remember in the days to come our four happy years in Seymour High School. We extend our heartfelt thanks to our able teachers for their generous cooperation and leadership in our sorrows, our joys, our trials and our tribulations. We have dedicated "In Retrospect" to our yearbook adviser, Mr. Edward U. MacConnie for his friendly advice and sincere help. We, therefore, render this yearbook as a memoir of our four years together and bid adieu to our Alma Mater.

"THANKS FOR YOUR HELP"

from The Class of 1941

Now that we've all passed in review,
And our twelve years of school are through,
We travel on to other things,
We challenge all the future brings.

We'll e'er advance and ne'er get lost,
We'll reach the top whate'er the cost.
But first we thank the faculty,
We thank Miss Bond, Miss F—, and "Lee".

Our principal and Mr. A—,
Who supervised our work and play.
With greater conquests now begun,
Our heartfelt thanks to everyone.

We'll find success, we feel we must.
Success, our goal, "The Top or Bust"!

All's Fair

"I believe you're taking me into dinner Mr. Van Vleck"

The Happy Ending

We All Helped

CLASS HISTORY

In September of the year of our Lord nineteen hundred thirty seven, the class of '41 was accepted as a part of Seymour High School. Showing considerable promise and initiative, they quickly started a class treasury; the means of which was the assessment of dues upon the individual members. That was the first time that this had been done in the history of the school. Not content to have only one "first" to their credit, they became the first freshman class to sponsor a dance. The music for this was provided by "The Triple Towners", and was a financial as well as a social success. To celebrate the ending of a successful year, they treated themselves to a holiday at Pleasure Beach Park, Bridgeport.

As sophomores, the class of '41 did a big favor to themselves and the rest of the school by discovering Jack Heavens and his orchestra at their Sophomore Hop. Another trip to Pleasure Beach ended the year.

As juniors, the class of '41 sponsored the first dance of the year, the Junior Harvest Dance; with Jack Heavens furnishing the music. As is the custom for the junior class, three one-act plays were produced; these being: "Elmer", "The Perfect Gentleman", and "The Pot Boiler". Also as is the custom, the class rings were selected. Towards the close of the year, the annual Junior Prom was held, the music being that of Earl Strong and his orchestra.

At the start of the senior year, a Masquerade Dance was given, at which Angie Marasco and his band played. A one-act play "June Mad", was produced; the first time a senior class had had their play before Christmas. Class photographs were taken, and the yearbook was published. In order to close an eventful four years, the class gave themselves a banquet.

In June, 1941, the class of '41, Seymour High School, quietly forsook the portals of their Alma Mater.

We feel that our association with members of the staff has been more than a business-like relationship, in endeavoring to bestow upon us the generalizations of an education. To some it is only the beginning to others perhaps the end; but what ere our destiny may be, we cannot help but remember the faculty for their interest in our welfare.
